Missing & Unclaimed Money and or Property:

It is possible that you are entitled to money or other property that's just out there waiting for you to claim it. Here are some legitimate and free online resources to check out. National Association of Unclaimed Property Administrators (NAUPA) is a nonprofit organization endorsing two websites unclaimed.org and MissingMoney.com that can help you find unclaimed funds and other property held by the states. This may include monies due you or family members from such sources as forgotten bank accounts and inheritances, utility bill refunds, or security deposits. NAUPA estimates that about one out of every eight Americans is entitled to unclaimed assets, with the average claim being about $1,000. I didn't believe it until I visited NAUPA's website and discovered that my family was due about $120 from a long-forgotten savings account my grandmother opened years before she died.
